Recovery, Rebuilding commission faces complaints about FEMA, building codes

BY GEOFF BELCHER
News Editor

The word the Governor's Commission on Recovery, Rebuilding and Renewal is getting from Hancock Countians seems to be, for now, that the emphasis still has to be on "recovery."

The group held its third Hancock County-area meeting on Wednesday - this one in Diamondhead - and it turned out much like the first two: Local "input" boiled down to a great many complaints about recovery efforts so far.

"Our purpose is to get input from you, the members of the community, on how to best rebuild the Mississippi Gulf Coast," Chairman Chuck Benvenuti said. He stressed that the intent of the meeting was to hear people's desires for where the want the community to be in the next five, 10, 15 or 20 years - not, necessarily, to provide them answers. However, he said, FEMA representatives were on hand to offer as much advice as possible, and would be happy to meet with people individually after the

A RAY OF HOPE

Volunteers from AmeriCorps and the Christian Contractors Assoc. on Friday unloaded parts of Gaynelle Acker's new home that will be built on her property at Ballentine St. in Bay St. Louis. The house is manufactured by Allen Associates of Santa Barbara, Ca. and donated through their efforts and the efforts of the 200 Santa Barbara volunteers and Habitat for Humanity.

Rebuilding begins in Bay

Rebuilding has officially begun in the city of Bay St. Louis.

"This was the first (post-Katrina) building permit issued in Bay St. Louis," local contractor Eddie Clark from the Ballentine St. site of Gaynelle Acker's once and future home. "It's a ray of hope for this area, you know? A little bit of sunshine — let people start seeing some hope around here. 'Hey, we can re-do this. It's a mess, but we can rebuild.'"

Through a mutual friend, Clark got in touch with Ian Cronshaw of Santa Barbara, Ca. Cronshaw is vice-president of Allen Associates, a construction which manufactures homes and wanted to donate one to a victim of Hurricane Katrina.

The difficult part, Clark said, was figuring out who would get it: "To pick somebody out was a hard decision. We asked God to help us."

Cronshaw and Allen Associates got help from almost 200 volunteers in the Santa Barbara area to help with the project — dubbed "Katrina House" — including the Crane Country Day School, the local chapter of the Habitat for Humanity, the city mayor and a congresswoman.

"It was really a great experience," Cronshaw said Friday. "People were excited by the idea because they wanted to send money, but they didn't know where the money was going."

Cronshaw said a student from a local Montessori school had raised more than $10,000 for the effort by holding a bake sale.

The city of Santa Barbara also donated a site where the Creole style home could be built, a process which took about more than four-and-a-half weeks. Then it was taken down piece by piece and delivered to the Acker property on Friday. Volunteers from AmeriCorps and the Christian Contractors Assoc. helped unload the truck. The Christian Contractors also dug the footers for the home and will help put it together.

Cronshaw said the home is rated to withstand a Category 5 hurricane.

The beginning construction process Friday was a bitter-sweet experience, because I was always here," he said, but I'm sure happy Gaynelle's getting this new one. It's a blessing, I tell you. This here's a blessing."

TWO TENTS

Armand Codianne and a couple of friends he met after the storm, FEMA Man and the Witch, outside the tent where they now live at N. Bourgeois St. in Waveland. Codianne has a second tent for "storage." He's been homeless since Hurricane Katrina, a situation compounded by his battle with multiple sclerosis.

Waveland man is tired of camping and bureaucracy

BY GEOFF BELCHER
News Editor

Seventy-six days after his Waveland home was destroyed by Hurricane Katrina, Armand Codianne is still living in a tent and quite frankly, he said Thursday, "I'm tired of camping out."

Codianne's dilemma is compounded by the fact that he suffers from multiple sclerosis, a debilitating condition which he says makes even normal life challenging.

Unlike a lot of other people who've been told by the Federal Emergency Management Agency that they're "on a list" to get a FEMA trailer, Codianne says he's been denied outright.

"Basically, the thing is that FEMA can't give me assistance until the Small Business Administration files their stuff and the insurance company files their stuff - I'm kind of in between everything."

"I think one of the biggest problems is that right after the storm, I stayed (with some friends) in Baton Rouge," Codianne said. "That was only for a few days, but the FEMA guy said 'You have a place to stay so you don't need a trailer.'"

"Well, not really. I mean, it's like dead fish - after a few days, you really start to stink. There's only so long you can be a guest. You need your own place."

Codianne fears he's fallen through the cracks, a place where he can't afford to be with just a monthly disability check.

"At this point, I'm just waiting for a letter of denial from the SBA," he said. "If they deny me in writing, then maybe I can get a grant."

Or at least get the ball rolling so he can get some help from some source, somewhere.

One good thing about the storm for Codianne is that he's made a new "friend," a stuffed dummy which he has dubbed "FEMA Man," who rides shotgun with him just about everywhere he goes. When he introduces the dummy as FEMA Man, a sly grin is the only editorial comment he offers.

Ponderings

Action, not politics

Live in Hancock County? Have a nice, new, expensive home? You probably feel pretty good with the knowledge your house was built to all the latest codes and standards. You had better think again. There are no building codes in Hancock County. The only thing required is a building permit. The electrician that wired your house did not have to be licensed. Even if he was licensed, he did not have to adhere to any codes. Think about that tonight when you put the kids to bed and turn off the lights. No building codes. Gee, I wonder if Bubba knew what he was doing when he wired your house, or if he used the correct wire, breakers, etc? Hopefully he was not running a little short on money or time and actually did the job correctly. I certainly do not know, and neither do you. No one checked.

The mass destruction left behind from Hurricane Katrina has handed our elected officials the perfect opportunity to correct this enormous county-wide problem, the lack of building codes.

Several years ago, there was another opportunity. A missed opportunity as it turned out. There was a big push, endorsed by many civic groups, to adopt some sort of building codes. Several public informational meetings were held and many citizens attended. There was also much misinformation circulated by certain groups opposed to building codes. People were afraid they would have to spend thousands and thousands of dollars to bring their property up to any new codes. That was not the case. Any existing structures would have been "grandfathered in."

Our county board of supervisors knew the need for building codes. They also understood the reason for most of the opposition. Three of the five members of that board were reportedly in favor of passing a building code ordinance, one was opposed and one undecided. They had an opportunity to implement building codes, but they did not. We go to the polls to elect people to represent us. We entrust these elected officials to make the tough decisions which must be addressed. Instead, our supervisors took the easy way out and did nothing.

A petition drive ensued and the building code proposal was eventually placed on a ballot, an election was held. With all the negative publicity and lack of action by the supervisors, the proposal had about as much a chance of passing as I do of being welcome at the next supervisor's meeting. The issue failed, with about 70 percent of the votes cast in opposition. It was the second time the issue had been voted down, by almost identical percentages.

Must the state or federal government step in and make the decision for us? Must the state or federal government mandate building codes and take the matter out of the hands of our local officials? That is exactly what will happen if we do not act on our own. Then our elected officials can tell their constituents that Big Brother is to blame. Someone else takes the heat and becomes the possible scapegoat.

Let's put the issue on a little more personal level. Think of your own family members, maybe your mother. Perhaps her home was destroyed in the hurricane and must be rebuilt. She, like everyone, deserves to be protected from unscrupulous contractors who might come into this area and try to take advantage of our citizens in their time of great need. Building codes will help protect your family members.

Please contact your supervisor and insist that building codes be placed at the very top of their agenda. It is critical to the long-term well-being of Hancock County.

It's way past time for playing politics. It's time for action.

We must have building codes now. We must not allow this opportunity to slip away again.

Here's food for thought ...

I feel some serious thinking should be done by FEMA before closing down the several groups who are offering free meals in Hancock County.

There is no question about the necessity in having commerce return to our destructed communities. At the same time, many things need to be taken into consideration.

Since we have received a FEMA travel trailer and returned home on a permanent basis, Jane and I have taken advantage of several free meals at the Bookter St. site.

Who do we see there?

There are others like us trying to work on our homes, salvaging things we can and discarding others.

One native told me it is an eight hour one-way journey for him.

Many are local merchants, small business people trying to revive their businesses as well as their residences.

There are also those who have no homes left, in addition, no FEMA trailer as yet.

I personally know one person who took an unpaid leave of absence to work here as a volunteer all the way from the state of New Jersey. A number of the volunteers even pay their transportation costs.

Should they be expected to pay for three meals a day for every day they volunteer to help us rebuild?

'Please make a list'

I was sitting on the beach side of the slab that was all that was left of our house. A breeze had started. Ghosts of other days began filling the air around me.

"Are you Mr. La Violette?"

I turned. The person had come up the side street and parked, so I had not seen him.

"Yes, I'm La Violette."

"I'm an adjuster for your Windstorm Insurance. Can I ask you a few questions and make some measurements?"

His questions were routine: how many rooms, what were they used for, which were heated, did we have an upstairs... I walked with him around the slab pointing out the area in the back that was covered by bricks so that he could see where the house ended and the driveway began.

"I'll make my measurements from what you showed me. It seems fairly clear where everything is. When you can, get together with your wife and make a list of the contents of the house and their individual values and then send it to me. The quicker you make the list and send it, the quicker we will be able to file your claim."

With that he began making measurements. I watched him for a moment and then stood and picked up a brick, sticking out from between some bricks. There was a broken plate close by. I knew them both very well. The fork was part of our everyday ware; the plate was from Stella's "good china," part of the dowry we had had to start our marriage thirty years ago.

The plate was a pretty piece; I'm not sure how often it had been removed from its place in

by Paul Estronza

the china closet in the dining room, maybe twenty times, maybe less. It was being saved, not used except on important occasions. After all, it might break and the pieces of the set were very expensive.

The fork was more expendable. We had used it everyday, three times a day, for thirty years. It had been involved in hundreds on hundred of meals that had ranged from pedestrian to good to, on many occasions, superb. It had stood its usage over those years very well. Now one of its tines was drastically bent.

The adjuster was calling me and I put the fork in my pocket and went to the back of the house. Things were more jumbled here. The bricks that had formed the front wall beside the house had encountered the concrete block wall at the rear and the clutter made an uneven deck to walk on.

"What was this room used for?"

"It was my shop."

He bent and made some more measurements. There were no tools in the space he was measuring. Like many of the things that were in the house, they were gone. I had found my truck a quarter of a mile from the house, upside down, crushed, its new tires pointed uselessly to the sky. My rider lawn mower was a short distance from it, equally destroyed. Here, in what had been my workshop, there were no tools.

We had built the house over a period of thirty years using these now absent tools. The original house had been 3000 square feet. Stella and I and another friend had gradually added to it, each year adding a new room or deck, doing most of the work ourselves, arguing, sweating in the heat, until the house had become the rambling, comfortable structure it was before the storm, our home, our life.

I left the adjuster making more of his measurements and returned to the front of the house.

This past spring, Stella and I had redone much of the front veranda, adding new steps to both ends and a broad set of steps in the middle to form a grand entrance. Now the space there and where the deck had been on the side were deep gullies, dug by the water as it had retreated from the land.

There are oddities in the wreckage. To the left of the porch were two large trees that Stella and I had used to spend our afternoons, a small retreat. Now, hanging incredibly from one of the trees was Stella's hammock, battered, its wood strings broken, but essentially intact and incredibly clean.

"It was a big house."

It was the adjuster. He had finished his measurements and had come to tell me he was leaving.

I nodded and shook his hand and he started to walk across the rubble to his car.

"Oh, wait," he stopped and came back and handed me his card. "Please don't forget that list and send it to me. I'll need it in order to make my final tally"

I said I wouldn't forget and watched him get into his car and drive off. He seemed nice, certainly considerate of what he was doing, measuring and tallying houses.

There were twenty-one homes on our street. Now there are twenty-one slabs. Each street as far as I could see to the east and west of where I stood was in similar condition. That's a lot of concrete slabs to measure and tally. He'll be here for a while. There'll be a lot of lists.

Water quality study released

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) have completed a water quality study along major bay systems on the Mississippi coast following Hurricanes Katrina and Rita that showed few chemicals of concern in bays and rivers where samples were taken.

The study looked for any serious short term problems with water quality.

EPA and MDEQ specifically targeted areas with the greatest potential for environmental harm because of the proximity to industrial or municipal areas. Overall, the sampling data show that few water quality criteria were exceeded during the study. In areas where elevated contamination levels were found, EPA and MDEQ will continue to evaluate the need for additional site specific studies to determine if there are any further adverse environmental impacts. Samples collected show bacteria concentrations at or below levels EPA considers suitable for swimming.

To determine if there may be any long term effects of the hurricane, additional data will be collected and compiled with existing data.

The study encompassed major bay systems on the Mississippi coast including Bangs Lake, Bayou Casotte, the Pascagoula and West Pascagoula River systems, the Back Bay of Biloxi, St. Louis Bay, and the Pearl River.

Complaints -- gov.'s group meeting.

Local architect Allison Anderson emphasized that the commission's intent was to give a great deal of emphasis to rebuilding the Coast's cities and towns with respect for their individual personalities, along with eco-tourism, arts, and historic preservation. Anderson said that one of the special challenges facing the area is that post-Hurricane Katrina re-building will likely require raising many people's homes: "It may well be reality in the southern parts of (Hancock) County. It may well be reality in Diamondhead, as well."

Several people in the audience complained that they aren't sure whether they're allowed to rebuild yet or not; to what height they're required to rebuild their homes; under what criteria; and whether they'll still be eligible for affordable flood insurance.

One man complained that he had 10 professional trades people volunteer from a local church to help him rebuild, but once they had started working, they were told they had to disconnect power from the house.

"If we can't get the bureaucratic process under control," Chris Stieffell told commission members, "we probably won't be much further in 10 years than we are right now."

"The county offices were set up to issue maybe five or six permits a week," Benvenuti said. "Now they're trying to do thousands per week. Nobody wants to hear 'be patient,' ... but that's what we have to do."

"Some people tell me that when they go to ask someone from FEMA a question," Father Sebastian Myladyll, pastor of St. Rose Catholic Church in Bay St. Louis said, "there is no uniformity of answers given. It totally depends on who they're talking too."

Dennis Tennant, FEMA Disaster Recovery Center director for the six southern counties, said "There should only be one answer, the right answer."

Unfortunately, he said, FEMA has had to hire a lot of new people very quickly to deal with the sheer magnitude of the disaster, so not everyone is up to speed. That's a problem the agency is working to fix quickly, he said.

Tennant also said that FEMA's updated flood zone advisory maps were be out in the next week-to-10-days, not the 14 months that had originally been anticipated.

"The counties will have them at the end of next week," he said. "Keep in mind, it's a local decision, not FEMA's decision," what board height local governments require.

"Whatever they do is going to be all right," he said, so people won't have to worry about not being eligible for affordable flood insurance. "It's their decision. Either way, it's all right."

Others complained that they still haven't received FEMA trailers, or, if they have, they're too small for their families.

"The task of getting enough trailers into this county has just been daunting, to say the least," Tennant said. "We've tried to target people living in shelters or cars or tents."

He repeated that FEMA reps would meet individually after the meeting; and said anyone with a FEMA-related problem could go to the Disaster Recovery Center by the skate park in Waveland.

Both Hancock County and the city of Bay St. Louis have adopted four-foot freeboard height requirements for the new flood zoning. Both the county and city building offices have set up temporary facilities at the Bay St. Louis Depot, where they are issuing building permits and will answer questions about building height requirements. all of these offices is still up in the air.

"We will be opening a public office on Hwy. 603 just south of Hwy. 43. Our investigations, narcotics, and administration will be located there for the time being," Hancock County Sheriff Steve Garber said.

Garber also said there will be a trailer located on Longfellow Dr. for citizens to pick up reports and make complaints. The dispatch and telecommunications center has been moved to Rocky Hill-Dedeaux Rd.

A major area of concern has been what to do about the Hancock County Jail. Currently the county has its inmates housed in the Pearl River County Jail in Millard, 59 miles north of Bay St. Louis. The county has purchased a portable jail that can house eight to ten people. Plans are to move the portable jail to the Kiln site, and allow for processing of minor offenses.

Before the storm the county jail held 95 inmates. These inmates were taken to Pearl River County. Today there is only 57 inmates in custody with just 27 of the 95 remaining from before the storm. Many of the inmates were taken by the Mississippi Department of Corrections and others have been bonded out or been moved to other jails.

Thirteen corrections officers have remained on the job. Some officers have been living in a trailer that FEMA has placed at the Pearl River County Sheriff's Dept. Other corrections officers have been driving back and forth every day to assist Pearl River County in its jail operation.

"I'm looking forward to coming back to our county," said corrections officer Terry Richter. "The people in Pearl River County have been good to us, and they are nice to work with, but it's not like being at home."

The county has been in discussion with Pearl River County about a contract that will cover the housing of the Hancock County inmates for at least a year. The contract has not been signed yet, but once it is, the corrections officers may no longer be needed at Pearl River.

"We lost nearly half of our staff in the jail because of the storm. The corrections officers that remained have done a great job under difficult circumstances. We are going to use these officers for transport and manning the portable jail once we sign a contract with Pearl River County. We do not anticipate any layoffs," Garber said.

"We still do not have a final decision of the old jail. We are going to have a jail, this county is too big for us not to. I think we could rebuild the old jail, but we need more space for the entire department," Garber said. He expects to be up and running in the new office by the end of the month.

"I would like to say that I am very proud of all of my deputies and non-commissioned employees. About 75% of our employees lost everything and they have remained on the job serving the county. The have never left their post and it's says a lot about the people we have working here," Garber said.

Bay-Waveland Yacht Club vows to return after Katrina's destruction

The BWYC Board of Governors says, "This picture will change!" At its November 5th meeting the Board voted to take important steps toward rejuvenating the Club. It approved a contract to have the grounds thoroughly cleaned of all debris, to have all damaged fences removed as well as the cement slab and pilings that were under the old club building. Holes caused by the removal of the cement slab or scoured out by storm waters will be filled.

The Board also voted to allocate the funds necessary to purchase a large trailer to be used as a temporary Club building. It must be a trailer in order to comply with the building codes of Bay St. Louis.

Harbor Restoration is to continue with repairs to the piers and the extension of electrical service to all slips. The Commodore, subject to the approval of the Board, is to appoint a committee to begin plans for a permanent Club facility.

In sailing news, the Executive Committee of the Gulf Yachting Association voted to cancel the 2005 Lipton Regatta. This means that the BWYC will be the host Club for the 2006 Lipton Regatta. A second post-Katrina "Jib Sheet" will soon be mailed to all members offering additional information about the restoration of Club facilities and announcing up-coming events.

The new mailing address for the Club is: BWYC, P.O. Box 3715, Bay St. Louis, MS 39521.

prior I had my doubts there would ever be a thriving community. And, now there is hustle and bustle, supply houses (thanks guys), places to eat, heck, three or four gas stations, oh and lets not forget, three liquor stores. Man, the community wasn't down like Rocky against Appolo Creed. Hancock County jumped back to its feet ready for round 3.

The most noticeable think I'm seeing this time is how the plants are pushing through at a time when there leaves are falling. They are fresh and green.

So, as frustrating as it is to have us clog up every available place to eat and every store for 100 miles, bear with us. We are working for you. So, if you get a chance, give a construction worker a hug.

I'm out for now. God bless and keep on smiling.

The ARTS Hancock Co. receives $5,000 Grant

The Arts, Hancock County applied for and received a grant from The Americans for the Arts in the amount of $5,000. The Americans for the Arts Emergency Relief Fund was established to provide timely financial assistance to victims of a major disaster for the purpose of helping them rebuild the arts in their community. Relief funds are generated by Americans for the Arts and the charitable contributions of foundations, corporations, governmental agencies, non-profit organizations, and individuals from across the country. These funds are distributed directly to local art agencies. Local art agencies may choose to use the funds for their own recovery or for individual artists.

The Arts has deposited the funds in a special bank account: The Arts, Hancock County Disaster Relief Fund at Hancock Bank. The funds from this account will be used to assist artists in replacing art materials, supplies and equipment lost as a result of Hurricane Katrina. A committee has been established to disburse the funds. In order to simplify the process, awards will be based on information listed in the Adopt and Artist form. The term "artist" is not limited only to visual artists, but also includes writers, sculptors, musicians, performing artists, and artisans. Artists who have not filled out a form may still do so. Forms and information will be available at the meeting Sunday, Nov 13 at 5:00 pm at 134 Blaize, next to Bay City Grill or at The Arts office located in the Coastal Electric conference building at 302 Hwy 90, corner of Main Street.

Household hazardous waste is unused or left-over portions of products containing toxic chemicals and any product which labeled caution, poisonous, toxic, flammable or corrosive.

Supervisor from Hancock County has decided to join Republican Party

SEA COAST ECHO

Jay Cuevas, a supervisor from Hancock County, switched to the Republican Party yesterday at 2:00pm. Mr. Cuevas has been contemplating the switch from the Democratic Party for sometime and made his final decision and announcement yesterday at the Mississippi Republican Party headquarters.

In his address to the State Republican Executive Committee, Mr. Cuevas said the following: "I've been a Democrat in name, but have always been a Republican at heart. I was one of those officials who thought the only way I could get elected was by running as a Democrat. I know that I was wrong about that. This move has been a long time coming, and it has been an easy one for me to make. I look forward to working with the Republican Party for many years to come."

State Party Chairman Jim Herring stated: "Jay Cuevas switching is another sign that our state and local officials continue to make the move toward sound government. It is an honor to have Mr. Cuevas join the Republican Party and I am sure that he will continue to do a fine job as supervisor in Hancock County."

Disaster Recovery Center opens in Pearlington

SEA COAST ECHO

A new Disaster Recovery Center opened this week in Pearlington, Hancock County, federal and state officials announced today.

Disaster victims are urged to register for assistance before visiting the center by calling 1-800-621-FEMA (3362) or (TTY) 1-800-462-7585 for those who are speech- or hearing-impaired. Individuals may also register online at www.fema.gov. Those who have questions or who wish to follow up on their registrations may visit the center to meet with recovery specialists in person.

The Disaster Recovery Center is located in Hancock County at: Charles Murphy Elementary School, 6098 1st Street, Pearlington.

The DRC will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and closed on Sunday until further notice.

Representatives of state, federal and voluntary agencies will be on hand to answer questions and provide recovery information. Officials from the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) will be available to discuss disaster loans for homeowners, renters, and businesses of all sizes. Written materials about various assistance programs are also available to individuals and business owners.

Other Disaster Recovery Center locations in the coastal area are: Hancock County, S. Coast Skate Park, 118 Anderer Blvd., Waveland; Harrison County, MS Gulf Coast Com. College, 21500 B Street, Long Beach; Harrison County, Disabled American Vets Hall, 2600 23rd Ave., Gulfport; Harrison County, Biloxi Recreation Center, 591 Howard Street, Biloxi. There is fear that it is not sound and could fall and cause injury. If the structure is sound, but the inside has been flooded, or is rotting or there are other concerns, the local government can choose to condemn the building and clean it out, shutting off all utilities, boarding it up and securing it.

How long will debris be picked up at the curbside?

There are usually three passes for pick-up. The objective of the first pass is to get all the debris pushed to the side of the road and clear a way for traffic. The second pass is to pick up anything brought to the curbside and remove health and safety hazards from the right of ways such as broken telephone poles, broken signs, hanging trees and other threats. Many communities are currently conducting the second pass. A third pass is made to remove debris that has been brought curbside.

In most of the state, the goal is to complete the third pass by Thanksgiving. For Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties, where there is much more debris, the goal is to complete the third pass by Christmas.

What happens to the debris after it is picked up?

Debris is taken to a staging and reduction site (which could be run by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, local governments, or private companies) where debris is sorted and reduced. Reduction can be done by mulching, chipping or burning vegetative debris and baling recycled metals. Hazardous materials are separated and disposed of properly. Debris which is recyclable is recycled. Some debris is sent to a landfill. Anything that can be re-used is re-used, such as mulch which can often be sold to companies who want to use it. The goal is to process all debris at staging and reduction sites by March 1st.

How is debris burned? Burning of debris must be done in accordance with Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality guidelines. Burning takes place a proper distance away from schools, healthcare facilities and populations as required by local government ordinances. The most common method of burning is using incinerators to burn at a very high temperature. Only clean vegetative matter is burned such as tree limbs and other vegetation.

Bay High Tigers edged out of playoffs by Mendenhall 14-7

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
Staff Writer

Well, the Tigers won on Friday night, only it was the Mendenhall Tigers that defeated the Bay High Tigers and not by much. Bay High was eliminated from the state playoffs by Mendenhall on Friday night in Mendenhall 14-7.

Despite the loss, Bay High has had a tremendous season considering where they have come from since August 29th.

The Tigers started out undefeated and put themselves in a position to win the Division 8-4A title. Bay High made the state playoffs and, again, put themselves in a position to pull a playoff upset on the road. The players gave it their all and as coaches, parents and fans that is all that can be asked of them.

Bay High head coach Brennan Compretta commented, "We knew coming into the game after watching Mendenhall on film that they were the most athletic team that we had faced so far. Our mindset coming in was to get to the fourth quarter with an opportunity to win the game and we had that opportunity. We just came up a bit short. These players have nothing to be ashamed of because they played their hearts out. I could not have asked them to play any harder than they did."

Since August 29th, it has been a roller coaster ride not only for this team but for the community, as well. The coaching staff was unsure of their ability to field a team after the storm but once Compretta and his staff began talking to players, it was apparent that they would not let this season slip by - especially for the seniors.

Compretta continued, "I did not want the kids to miss out on this year, especially the seniors. They have been a tremendous group to work with and I am honored to have had the opportunity to coach them. We were also fortunate to pick up a few of the St. Stanislaus players - Kyle Hughes, Buddy Schultz, Bryce Morreale and Matt Matranga. We talked to our kids prior to getting them and they were very open to it and made them feel welcomed. We are a community here in the Bay-Waveland area and we wanted to have them. They were a joy to have with us."

Bay High started out on offense and Kyle Moran carried the load on the 13-play drive that ended at the Mendenhall 29 yardline. Moran had carries of 7, 6, 9, 5, 6 and 6 on the drive. Bay High was unable to convert on a fourth-and-two situation and turned the ball over on downs.

Mendenhall wasted no time getting to the endzone on their first possession as Ben Walker carried twice on the four-play drive. His first carry went for 14 yards followed by a 40-yard scoring run with 4:32 left in the first quarter. Deron Dampier connected on the PAT to make the score 7-0.

The Tigers continued to prove that they could move the football as Robert Labat picked up 18 yards, followed by some trickery by the Tigers. On a fourth-and-eight, the Tigers lined up in punt formation but snapped directly to Tyler Brush who completed a 37-yard pass to Colby Adam at the Mendenhall 18 yardline.

Two Bay High false start penalties killed the drive there.

Kyle Hughes and company forced Mendenhall three plays and out. Brush carries for 13 yards and completed a 6-yard pass to Trevor Adam on the ensuing drive. However, the Tigers were unable to sustain the drive.

Mendenhall got a first down on a pass interference call on Bay High but Robert Labat intercepted Jason Walker's pass at the Bay High 22 yardline and returned it to the Mendenhall 39 yardline. The Tigers fumbled the ball back to Mendenhall three plays later.

Kyle Hughes, Trevor Adam and Kyle Moran continued to apply defensive pressure to Mendenhall for the next two series and the half ended with Mendenhall nursing a 7-0 lead.

The two teams traded possessions twice to start the second half. Trevor Adam recovered a loose ball at the Mendenhall 22 yardline which gave the Tigers a short field to work with. Bay High promptly went to the airwaves as Brush connected with Labat for a 22-yard score with :09 left in the third quarter. Moran converted on the PAT to tie the score at 7-7.

Mendenhall answered on the next drive that covered 47 yards due to a short kick by Bay High. Kentrell Cleveland carried the ball four times on the six-play drive that ended with Cleveland covering 19 yards on the touchdown. Dampier converted on the PAT and with 9:34 left in the game the score was 14-7.

The two teams stuffed each other on their ensuing drives before Bay High took over at their own 20 yardline.

Bay High was intercepted on the fifth play of the drive to end the surge.

Kyle Hughes led the Tiger defense on the next series, garnering three tackles while Trevor Adam added two more tackles to force Mendenhall to punt away.

Needing a big play following a Bay High penalty, Brush found Trevor Adam down the right side for a 36-yard gain to the Mendenhall 42 yardline. On the next play, Labat had trouble pulling in a Brush pass that would have been a guaranteed score as no Mendenhall player was in the area.

Brush connected with Jason Sims for a 13-yard gain as the time expired on the game and Bay High's season.

Senior linebacker Trevor Adam summed it up, "We had our chances tonight but we didn't capitalize on them. We played our hearts out tonight and have nothing to be ashamed of. We have had an up and down year but we have made the most of it. I hope that my football career is not over but we will see how that goes in the coming months."

Senior Kyle Moran stated, "We felt good out there tonight and played with them. We gave it all we had but losing is still tough."

Hawks' season finally over

BY DWAYNE BREMER
Staff Writer

The 2005 football season came to a close for the Hancock Hawks Friday night as they dropped a 45-19 decision to the Harrison County Red Rebels.

"This season will not be remembered by what we did on the field, but by how this group of kids battled adversity and never quit on each other," Hawks head coach Walt Esslinger said.

When the final horn sounded it was an emotional time for the Hawks seniors. Facing the fact that this was their last football game brought many of them to tears as they embraced each other and family members.

The Hawks came into Friday night's game with hope that they could be competitive in this game. A bad first quarter, coupled with some frustrating penalties placed the Hawks in a big hole in which the never would recover. All that was left was to play out the game, and to their credit the Hawks played hard until the end.

Trailing 35-0 in the second quarter, the Hawks put together a 12 play drive that spanned 65 yards for their first score. Chris Jochum started things out with a six yard run, and Andrew Smith then had a nine yard run. Braxton Necaise scrambled for 17-yards, and Necaise then hit Chase McIver for a 12-yard reception, and a first down. Four plays later, Necaise hooked up with McIver again for a five yard touchdown reception. Freshman Ryan Dodd added the extra point, and the Hawks had only their third touchdown of the season in the first half.

The Hawks would get good field position in the third quarter, thanks to a pair of sacks. Joseph Necaise sacked the Rebel quarterback, and then Brently Necaise and Kevin Lafontaine had a sack to force a punt.

The Hawks took over at the 37, and five plays later the Hawks were in the endzone again. Braxton Necaise hit Drew Malley for 15 yards, and Necaise then hit McIver for five yards. Larry Beech ran for four more yards, and then Smith busted around the right side for a 103-yard touchdown. The point after failed, and the score was 42-13.

The Hawks would get the ball back with 5:26 to play in the game, and the Hawks gave their fans one more touchdown to remember. Necaise hit Smith for 19 yards, and Necaise then ran for five yards. Jochum has a nine yard run, and three plays later it was Smith that capped off the drive with a two yard run. The two point conversion failed, and the final score was 45-19.

Necaise completed eight passes for 79 yards, and five of those were to McIver for 45 yards. Smith carried 18 times for 92 yards.

The Hawks defense was led by Brently Necaise who had 10 tackles, two sacks and a fumble recovery. Lafontaine had two sacks and seven tackles.

"I am very proud of all these kids. They have struggled on the field the last two years, but it says a lot about who they are that they stuck it out to the end," Esslinger said.
